TELEGRAPHIC

New York, Dec. 2.-Judge Black to-day responded to a call of the Chamber of Commerce here for an opinion as to the injury inflicted by the fluctuating and discriminating rates of railroad transportation charges in a column reply which makes the following points: Railroad men believe or pretend to believe, that railways are the property of companies authorized to run them, which is a cardinal error and the parent of much false argument. A public highway cannot be private property. A railroad laid out and built by the authority of the state for purposes of commerce is as much a public highway as a public road, canal or a navigable river. Tax, tolls, or freight, in any case, is not the subject of a bargain between shipper and a corporation, but a thing to be settled, fixed and preserved by public authority. The two companies between Omaha and San Francisco raised in cash, out of government bonds, four or five times as much as they necessarily expended on the roads. The stockholders, without paying anything, put the enormous surplus in their pockets. These roads thus built at the public expense and in some cases paid for by the public five times over, are claimed now as the private property of the companies, and the right of the public to use them as highways is utterly denied. Nevertheless I think the claim of these companies to take reasonable tolls stands upon the same position as that of companies whose roads were built by the stockholders themselves at their own expense. Your mention of four dollars from New York to Salt Lake and only $2.50 to San Francisco is perhaps not the most ungenerous, but its gross violation of legal principle as can be conceived if the railroads belong to the people then the rights of a citizen are precisely equal and discriminations are unlawful. He thinks the law necessary to compel them to be faithful to the duties they owe to the public at rates reasonably fixed, uniform and equal, with ut extortion, without wanton charges, without discrimination, are not difficult to frame. At the Pennsylvania railroad office it is stated that they do not intend to be used as a convenience and as the Baltimore & Ohio has taken away their passenger business they claimed a right to refuse to carry Baltimore & Ohio freight.

About the Canal.

New York, Dec. 2.-Wm. Seligman, a member of the Panama canal syndicate, informed a Herald Paris correspondent yesterday: We made it a condition of our participation of the affair and obtained a written guarantee that an American directorate and president should be appointed, and so far as we can see the people of the United States will eventually hold the largest quantity of stock. I am confident that the goods and passenger traffic through the Panama canal will be from four to five times as great as that of the Suez canal, and that in ten years the Panama shares now issued at $100 will be worth from $600 to $800.

Jury Selected.

Dublin, December 2.-The jury for the state trials have been selected as follows. Firstly, from the special jury comprising 1500 names 48 will be selected by ballot; these 48 names will then again be placed in the ballot box and drawn out separately; each side has a right to object to 12, and from the 25 names thus remain the jury is to be selected. Each side again having the right to again challenge.

The "Boss" Locomotive.

Detroit, Dec. 2.-The new and novel locomotive invented by Eugene Fontaine of the city, arrived from Fort Wayne, Indiana, this forenoon on schedule time, making a mile a minute with ease and it is confidently expected that it will make over seventy-five miles an hour. Tests with a loaded train and upgrade gave great satisfaction to railroad men who are interested.

Should be Relieved.

Cincinnati, Dec. 2.-The statement has been telegraphed that Richard South in an interview said that Gen. Garfield's health was much impaired and that he needed rest. Mr. South emphatically denies the story and says he only thinks Garfield has been overtaxed by many visitors and should be relieved of that burden.

Will not be Received.

Chicago, December 2.-The Journal's Washington special says Gen. McDowell will not be received, although his coming east to vote for Garfield gave great offense to Gen. Sherman. The president decides that he shall remain.

Lengthy.

St. Louis, Dec. 2.-The Mexican extension of the M. K. & T. R. R. is finished and other lines now contemplated combined with the Missouri Pacific system will embrace about 4,500 miles.

Jugged.

Richmond, Dec. 2.-Three judges of the election of the city of Manchester were arrested for refusing to take votes of colored persons who showed capitation receipts according to law.

They "Kick."

St. Louis, Dec. 2.-The Creek delegation is here enroute for Washington to work for the Creek Indian interests and to oppose the settlement of the whites in Oklahoma.

Opera House Fire.

Topeka, Kansas, Dec. 2.-Crawford's opera house burned to-day. Loss $30,000. Insured for $15,000, partially in the American Union of California.

Suicide.

Bellfontain, O., Dec. 2.-James Sloan, in jail for shooting, was found this morning with his throat cut which proved fatal.

Fires.

Eldorado Ks., Dec. 2.-The elevator and mill owned by E. K. White burned to-day. Loss $20,000.

Decreased.

London, December 2.-The banks in London have decreased over £1,000,000.

RATON'S R. FISHER.

A Notorious Practitioner Barely Escapes Lynching.

"Dr." C. A. Washington of Raton City barely escaped lynching Wednesday night, and to voice public sentiment, "it is a pity he isn't hung." Washington is well known to the people of this region and enjoys anything but a good reputation. He has traveled all over the country, spending several years on the Pacific coast, engaged in what business we are unable to state. He is branded as a lustful wretch, who has brutally maltreated two women who have borne his name, and has caused many another, whom he has wronged, to become nearly heart broken.

His last victim was Miss Abbie J. Snel, a respectable and by no means unattractive young woman of Topeka, Ks., who, being obliged to earn her own living and contribute to the support of a needy family, went to Raton City sometime in July or August. There she found employment as table girl in the Mountain House, which was disgraced by the presence of Washington as a boarder. Miss Snel's pretty face roused the sensuous wretch and after finding his blandishments unable to accomplish his base purposes he sought to ruin the unprotected girl by the most debasing means. The opportunity presented itself when Miss Abbie was stricken down with fever and Washington, the only physician in that region, was called in to attend her. The whole details of the fiendish crime of the monster are too revolting to dwell upon. Putting the young girl under the influence of chloroform, he sated his lustful cravings; and not only once, but as the poor girl in her misery stated, realizing the depth to which she had been dragged down, she was ravished on eight or ten different occasions by Washington. Her sickness became alarmingly dangerous, aggravated by the agony of mind which she suffered, and Wednesday night, before breathing her last, she told the revolting story of her shame and disgrace.

The people of Raton, as may easily be imagined were righteously indignant, and the thought of the poor girl lying dead, so incensed them that they forgot all moderation and a band of vigilantes was immediately formed and Washington's life hung in the balance. Everything was made ready and lynching was only prevented by officer Hogan and a cow-boy, who espoused the cause of the brute, and hustled him off to Ctero.

The inquest over the body of Miss Snel was to have been held yesterday, and the utmost sympathy was expressed for her, and the most abject hate for Washington.

Washington, who bore the title of doctor, purchased the honor, or a diploma of "erring it, from the Kansas City Medical College, where he attended lectures during the winter of 1877-8.

In 1876, after months of turmoil with his wife in La Veta, Colorado, he sought to kill her, and being frustrated in this, attempted to burn her alive by firing the house in which they lived. He was forced to flee the town, a mob threatening to hang him. He was carried to West Las Animas by George Ross, a colored man of unquestioned veracity of this city, who avers that but for a timely "lift" on the way, Washington would have dangled as a tassel to a hempen cord. Notwithstanding his narrow escape from lynching, he had the audacity to introduce himself into Masonic circles in Las Animas, but he was given the cold shoulder and after a two months' stay went to Kansas City.

In some way he obtained a divorce from his wife and then succeeded in winning the hand of Miss Menger, an estimable young lady, daughter of Dr. Menger of El M. ra. He then began to practice in Otero, and was financially very successful. Mrs. Washington was a hard working woman and devotedly attached to her husband, receiving in exchange for her love and devotion, only kicks, blows and curses. The poor woman was most inhumanly treated and the result was premature labor; and she was finally forced to return to her father's house. To add to all the misery, she was branded by her husband with untidiness and was well high driven into the grave.

Last winter in Otero Washington had a difficulty with old man Dalton, and murdered him with a clasp knife. As Dalton had been a hard drucker, the "Dr." succeeded in establishing a plea of self defense and thus cheated the gallows.

Washington is a tall, spare, raw-boned six-footer, with black hair and beard, and long peaked face. He dresses in flashy style, and is impudence personified, always obtruding himself everywhere. It is to be hoped that his career is run and that he will pay the full penalty of the law.

J. M. Ryan of New York, who was formerly a contractor on the Santa Fe road, and has lately been foreman on a grading gang had been sick for some days with pneumonia and it was thought best to move him to some point where he could secure better accommodations and more comforts. He grew rapidly worse and died on the train between San Marcial and Alamogordo. His body was taken care of at Albuquerque and will be forwarded to his friends in the east.
